I met with Sarah and Emma from Cancer Research UK to discuss cancer diagnosis and treatment in the UK. Tackling obesity, poor diet and lack of exercise is an important strand of reducing cancer rates in the UK and we spoke about how cuts to public health budgets are storing up problems for the future. We must also tackle the ongoing challenges in recruitment and retention of vital clinical staff in this part of the workforce.