I am very disappointed to hear the right hon. Gentleman talk down the NHS. As he has just acknowledged, before the election the NHS knew that it was facing an unprecedented efficiency challenge. He will also know that under Labour productivity in the NHS fell continuously. I wonder whether... [Interruption. ] Okay, but for almost every year...

Lindsay Hoyle (Deputy Speaker; Chorley, Labour)

Order. The hon. Lady needs to ask a sharp and punchy question as an intervention, and very quickly

Sarah Wollaston (Totnes, Conservative)

Will the right hon. Gentleman acknowledge the NHS's achievement in making a productivity gain?
